The world is changing. Sometimes it feels as if things are changing so fast we are chasing after our own understanding, wisdom and power, rather than leading from those places.

There is a constant cacophony of noise, much of which seems to be nonsensical or irrelevant. News is constant and interactive, often featuring celebrity gossip, rather than providing us with informed authorities who tell us what we need to know. Internationally and in the US, uprisings are organized on Facebook, or Tweeted about. We can bemoan it, we can resist it, but we can't control this change!

So, how do we lead? Where do we gather our strength, how do we summon our own spiritual and moral authority, and how do we know what steps to take? What kind of leadership is successful and meaningful in times of rapid change?

Rev. Riley will explore leadership that emerges from deep spiritual grounding, builds more loving spiritual community, and takes risks. She will prod us to be bigger and bolder: Unitarian Universalists have unique perspectives and gifts to offer the world in this time of change, if we dare to do so!
